ABOUT:

Is a DJ an artist and what does a DJ actually do?

Do you think a DJ should be put in the same category with other artists? Like musicians, composers, painters, and photographers? They are all artists that have learned a skill. They all use their skill to bring about emotion in other people. They do this by either creating something new, or by capturing a unique scene or moment in time, and then making the result available to an audience. DJs are the same. They use their skill to create mixsets, and in doing so they are capturing something unique which can be made available to an audience.

The primary goal is to make people dance by using the process of mixing and song selection. Good DJ mixes do not consist of random song choices. There is an artistic process at work.
